About the Dustbombers

Loud, dark and noisy: The Dustbombers is a psychedelic wave and noise band from Arnhem/Nijmegen, the Netherlands.

The band uses electronic beats with loud fuzzguitar, bass and vocals. Nothing light and easy, but riff fueled dark and intense music. The band sounds like a crossover between Big Black and Joy Division with some added psychedelica and a heavy beat. Other influences are Distorted Pony, Unwound and Deception Bay.

The band formed in 2012 when Erik Drost (Legendary Pink Dots, The Phantom Four) teamed up with Joost Reijnders. Both had some experience in other bands, but once formed they were focused: their music had to be intense, noisy and loud, based on an electronic beat.

In 2013 the Dustbombers released their first demo, called [DEMO] and started doing gigs. They performed live a.o. with Tera Melos. In 2015 they released their second EP called Public Beta. A full length album is scheduled for early 2016.

The Dustbombers:

Erik Drost: guitar

Joost Reijnders: bassguitar, vocals, programming
